I have included an article below that I wrote about spyware.

by Garfield Benjamin

An alternative name for Spyware is Adware. While they are not technically the same thing they both present enough real issues that you should at least be aware of them.

Spyware and Adware are special computer programs (software) that are created by certain publishers to allow them to monitor your computer and Internet activities.

The software can do many things including tracking your browsing activity, monitoring your Instant Messenger conversations and producing popup advertising.

Spyware is becoming so common that unless you have taken action to combat it your computer is almost certainly infected with Spyware right now.

There are number of delivery methods.

Have you ever performed any of the following activities?

- * Surfing the Internet
- * Downloading files
- * Installing browser plug-ins

[illegible]

[illegible]

What happens is that when you browse the Internet certain sites have special code (a sort of mini computer program) that runs in the background and places Spyware and Adware on your computer.

In case you are not familiar with the term, warez refers to illegal websites selling commercial software even though they have no rights to sell it.

The same approach is used when installing browser plug-ins.

There are special products that have been developed specifically to search out, find, and eliminate Spyware and Adware from your computer. This is by far the most effective solution.

Would you like to know if Spyware / Adware is installed on your computer?

"Is this something I should really be concerned about?"

Author: Garfield Benjamin

When you run you will see a list of files, don't be alarmed because many of the files that come up will be what is called a tracking cookie. Personally, I do not worry much about these. The ones you want to be really concerned about are the files that are not identified as tracking cookies! Files that are identified as Malware or something else.

The next thing you should do is invest in a good virus scanner. It really is very important to have one if you want to keep your computer in good running condition and protect yourself from all of the crazy people out there who spend their time creating viruses.

It amazes me that people would spend that much time working (for free!) on things in the hope that their products succeed in making life just a little bit more difficult for the rest of us. That is just very strange to me! I'd rather work on something worthwhile and make a good income from it.

I have version 5 and it is worth every penny and more. It allows you to protect your computer from viruses, defrag & clean your registry, defragment your hard drive and more.

[illegible]

Once you have run both AdAware and Fix-It Utilities you can sign up for any of the special music sites I will be revealing to you in the next section.

The virus scanner should be automatically running in the background all the time watching for viruses. That is one level of protection. Beyond that, I recommend you perform a full virus scan at least once per week.

I also have included links for each site. Just click on the links to visit the sites.
